Labor troubles are rife in the United States. Employees in many industries seek shorter hours with the same wages. The latest big strike is that of the textile workers, 350,000 men and 2,500 mills being involved. The walk-out is the most complete in textile industry's history in that country.

Higginson, 54 years old, an Edmonton insurance man, has been charged with her murder.

A Fletcher Creek farmer reports the harvesting of a crop of Marquis wheat which yielded 55 bushels to the acre off a 21 acre field.

Cheap passenger excursions and heavy shipments of wheat from Alberta country elevators have contributed to make hays times for the two big railroads. The traffic through the mountains has been at a peak not experienced for three years and railway employees are jubilant. The passenger traffic has been exceptionally heavy this summer.

Livestock men have asked the federal government to take 100,000 head of hog grade beef cattle out of domestic consumption. It is claimed that demoralization of cattle markets would be prevented if this were done.

GOOD-BYE

Almost eight years ago I became editor and publisher of The Bassano Mail. Last week's paper was the last edition under my editorial and literary and saying goodbye.

During those eight years I have had much and sad, and this it all I have tried to give my best efforts to the publication of the paper.

Now, on the eve of my departure to British Columbia, I look back upon those years spent in Bassano, and I find they have been the most enjoyable and most valuable years of my life.

It has been a pleasure to serve the people of Bassano and district in the capacity of editor of their weekly paper. It has been a work that has given me a valuable experience; brought me into close contact with the people; taught me to appreciate their work and their problems; and it has resulted in the gaining of many friends whom I sincerely respect and love.

To the people of Bassano and district I want to say "Thank you" for the support you have given me, and for the many suggestions, criticisms and encouragement I have received.

This district has suffered under the stress and strain of a world-wide business depression combined with a succession of lean harvests. Thus it all the people have borne their burdens and faced their difficulties with a courage and fortitude that commands the highest admiration. It is my hope that the worst is past, and that the future will bring you a turn of good fortune.

Goodbye.

The Difference

An inspector, examining a claim in religious knowledge, asked the following question of a little girl, intending it for a catch: "What was the difference between Noah's Ark and Joan of Arc?"

He was not a little surprised when the child, answering, said: "Noah's Ark was made of wood and Joan of Arc was made of Orleans."

The Search

"Little Betty" watching the farm hands spreading out a sack of hay to dry, could contain her curiosity no longer, so she politely asked: "Is it a needle you're looking for?"

High Finance

"Tommy, will you have a soda?"

"No, thank you, but I'll take an ice cream cone and a nickel, please."

"Yes, it is really remarkable," observed mother at the head of the table. "Clifford seems to eat twice as much chicken when we have visitors."

"Indeed!" exclaimed the lady visitor.

"And, pray, who is that, Clifford?"

"Cause that's the only time we have it!" replied the truthful lad.

"I sentence you to spend 15 days in the city jail," said the judge, and added sternly, "and I have a premonition that some day you will get a prison term."

"Tut, tut—such grammar, Judge!" quipped the light-hearted vagabond, "ending a sentence with a premonition!"

Before you polish dirty furniture, rub it with hot water and dry it immediately. Then when you polish it the wood will take a high lustre and won't show finger marks.

Figures released by the Dominion Department of Agriculture show that British Columbia is the only province in Canada with a larger fruit crop than that harvested in 1933. All the other provinces have a reduced yield.

Crop Conditions in Argentina

On the whole crop conditions in Argentina are favorable. There are certain areas which report poor conditions but the present outlook is that a good average crop will be harvested. Up till last week there was some apprehension of drought, but since then rain has fallen.

The end of the crop year saw the Argentina with 64 million bushels of wheat available for export. Sellers have been disposing of their holdings freely and the week before last Argentina shipped more than six million bushels, the largest weekly shipment in two years. It is now obvious that Argentina's crop for 1933 was at least 275 million bushels, the largest since 1928. That country's average annual production is about 250 million bushels. The record crop of 1928 was 356 million. Her acreage is usually around 19 million and the 1923-34 yield per acre averaged twelve and three-quarter bushels.

The Cause of the Drop in Wheat Prices

In explanation of the sudden drop in wheat prices during the week of August 12, the assistant commercial editor of the Winnipeg Free Press says: "No fundamental change occurred in the wheat situation—crop values increased if anything—yet a bushel! A reaction from the steady advance was probably in order and a break of 2 cents of 4 cents" was doubtless due, but there appeared to be no justification for the flop that took place. It was simply another instance of small frightened speculators making a run on the market in an effort to escape being trimmed as they had been many times before. Most of the speculative grades have been stop-losses and the great bulk of them called for liquidation at the same moment. Buyers were aware of this and at the first sign of weakness they sat back to await the inevitable break in prices.

"It is of interest to note that while the market was advancing exporters bought liberally of Canadian wheat at the highest prices paid in years, but immediately the price-tracked halt was called to the buying."

Russia May Be Out of Wheat Market

The Russian wheat authorities are pretty well unanimously of the opinion that Russia's wheat crop this year will be considerably smaller than last year's. In that case Russia will be a very small factor in the international wheat trade, as last year she exported only about 30 million bushels of wheat. The Russian crop this year suffered from drought at a critical time, particularly the wheat areas of the south. Late rains were reported but Mr. Broomhall thinks they did very little good. The Russian government is making smaller grain collections this year than in past years which will bring down the amount available for export. A continental authority suggests the possibility of famine in the drought areas of Russia during the coming winter.

The provincial government is planning two projects to aid farmers in the drought areas. One of these is the initiating of a scheme of public works including road building and the construction of dams to impound run-off water. The second project is to take something like 25,000 cattle, subject to forced sale through lack of feed, off the markets.

NO one can actually blame Sonny for speaking up. After all, with cars whizzing by on both sides, he probably thought Dad was holding back.

The sparkling performance of many a car is often interfered with by inefficient gasoline. We don't claim for a minute that all gasolines in the West are "inefficient" and that ours can put wings on your car. We do feel, however, that you will like the way Texaco Fire-Chief takes hold on hills, in traffic... the way it steps out when you "step on it".

If you want to show Sonny what your car really can do, give Fire-Chief a trial. It is available at all Texaco Stations at regular gasoline prices. And after all is said and done, an ounce of performance is worth pounds of claims.

SAVING CORN FOR SEED

During the past two years, farmers in Western Canada have been showing an increased interest in corn, and many now wish to save seed from their crop. The following rules may be of assistance to them.

Grow a variety or strains, which will mature in the district. In many districts throughout the southern portion of the Prairie Provinces, early strains of Falconer, Minnesota, No. 13 and North Western Dent will mature in most seasons. In areas having a somewhat shorter growing season, earlier maturing varieties, such as Gohs, Manitoba Flint and Dairy White Flint, will be more satisfactory.

Harvest the ears when in the glass stage and before the first severe fall frost. Ears which are well advanced in maturity shrink less after harvest than do immature ears. Such ears dry more rapidly, are less apt to become mouldy, shell out a higher percentage of kernel to cob and the quality of the seed is much superior.

Select the best ears from the most vigorous plants. While it is important to select well shaped ears, which carry the kernels well up on the tip, it is more important that the plants from which the ears are selected are desirable types. These plants should be healthy and vigorous and carry the ears well up on the stalk. Corn that is becoming more prevalent in Western Canada and mouldy plants should be rejected when selecting ears.

Dry the ears as rapidly as possible in a well ventilated place. When the ears are pulled in the field, they usually contain quite a high percentage of moisture. This moisture percentage should be reduced as rapidly as possible in order to prevent loss by mould and heating. A very simple method of drying and one which has been used successfully on the Dominion Experimental Farm, Brandon, Manitoba, for a number of years, is to put the husked ears (ears with sheath removed) in a crate that is raised about a foot off the ground. The crate should be not more than three feet wide, preferably three inches. If a proper circulation of air is to be maintained, crates such as are used for shipping hogs or calves are most satisfactory. At night and during wet weather the crates are covered with binder canvas. In from three to four weeks the ears will be ready for shelling.

Store the seed in a dry place and protect from mice.
